BATSHEVA DANCE COMPANY

North American Tour, May 1978

Batsheva Dance Company is sponsored by The Ministry of Education and Culture and the America-Israel Cultural Foundation

This tour is in celebration of the 30th anniversary of the founding of the State of Israel.

נשיא מדינת ישראל
PRESIDENT OF ISRAEL

For Batsheva on Its North American Tour, April-May 1978

As the Batsheva Dance Company leaves for its tour, it takes with it the blessings of the people and Government of Israel. We are proud of this fine dance company of ours, and see it as one of the striking expressions of Israel's creativity and concern for the esthetic values of life.

Batsheva has developed in a country afflicted by wars and terrorist attack over all its thirty years of existence, but in its struggle Israel has always aimed at more than physical survival for its people, so many of them survivors of the greatest of modern agonies. Physical survival is for us the necessary pre-condition for a life of values, spiritual, intellectual, esthetic, rooted in the noble legacy of the Jewish people and open to the great developments of world culture.

Batsheva is a splendid example of this urge to creativity and esthetic achievement. The relationship of redemption and the dance goes far back into Jewish history. We remember that when the Israelites crossed the Red Sea, safe from the pursuing Egyptians, Miriam and the women danced in thanksgiving. Batsheva, in a sense, fulfils that symbolic role. We wish all who will be seeing it, true joy.

Ephraim Katzir

As a friend and admirer of the "Bat-Sheva" Company, I join in wishing you much success on the occasion of your spring tour to the United States and Canada.

The "Bat-Sheva" Dance Company is a fine ambassador of Israeli artistic talent, presenting modern dance in a unique and distinctive style of its own.

Indeed, "Bat-Sheva" has become, over the years, a training ground for scores of young students in choreography and dance.

I feel confident that the art-admiring audiences will enjoy the experience of the performances as much as do the public in Israel.

With my very best wishes from Jerusalem,

The Batsheva Story

The age of Batsheva Dance Company is half the age of the State of Israel. As Israel celebrates her 30th birthday Batsheva celebrates its fifteenth. During its numerous tours to Europe and the United States Batsheva Dance Company has received great acclaim:

"A GIFT FROM ISRAEL" ... for this is a gorgeous troupe—handsome, gifted and almost furiously vital—with a repertory rooted in the techniques and even some of the masterpieces of Martha Graham herself ... In all, Batsheva dancers performed with technical exactitude and marvelous spirit."

Walter Terry, World of Dance
"Israel's Batsheva is one of the world's great dance companies. And this is so far one primary reason. Each of its 16 dancers offers total physical, intellectual and emotional commitment to every role."

VARIETY, New York
"... a troupe of simply wonderful dancers. The company has a very special way and elegance with it ... unusually gifted dancers ... I have fallen in love with the Batsheva Dance Company. It is so strong and vigorous, so exciting. It makes choreography come alive and dances every step with its heart."
Clive Barnes, NEW YORK TIMES
"Martha Graham can be honestly proud of her influence upon the young Batsheva Dance Company of Israel ... They danced beautifully, skillfully ..."

Lee Silver, DAILY NEWS
"One of the dance wonders of the modern world."

TORONTO DAILY STAR
"What is striking about Batsheva is its homogeneity, its robust harmony, its animal grace, its eloquence and natural vigor."

LE MONDE, Paris

In this limited space it would be impossible to quote all the international praise and to enumerate all the many awards which the dancers and the company have received over the years.

Batsheva Dance Company is the dance ambassador of Israel and is the only company to officially represent the State of Israel in America, Canada, London and South Africa during the 30th Anniversary celebrations. It was not an idle blessing that Golda Meir bestowed on the company, and one can concur with the critics' judgment that the true future of dance in Israel has deep roots, courage, strength and a forward-looking modern style which, however, does not ignore the past.

In 1963 when Batsheva de Rothschild started the Company she was considered "mad," much like the mad people who established the kibbutzim in the desert. It is true to say that there was always ballet and dance in Israel, but unorganized and without modern rehearsal studios.

In the early years the majority of funds was given to education, absorption of immigrants and safeguarding of our country. In the midst of all this Martha Graham agreed to become the artistic advisor of the Batsheva Dance Company, and in 1964 an outstanding and successful premiere was held and a modern dance ballet company was born. At that time there were hardly enough people to fill the auditorium for two evening performances in Tel Aviv and one in Jerusalem; there was only half a house in Haifa but the Company persevered, grew from strength to strength and developed in stature.

At that time most of the Israeli dancers were studying abroad but on the formation of the Batsheva Dance Company they returned home to join the company. More than 300 performances have been given since then and modern ballet has become one of the most appreciated cultural developments in Israel. An Israeli critic once wrote that the history of dance in Israel should be described in terms of before and after Batsheva. The Company has indeed been fortunate in attracting some of the world's great choreographers: Martha Graham, Jerome Robbins, Glen Tetley, Pearl Lang, Norman Morrice, Jose Limon, John Cranko, Kurt Jooss, Anna Sokolow, Norman Walker, Robert Cohan, John Butler, Talley Beatty, Donald McKayle, Christopher Bruce, Brian McDonald and now Paul Sanasardo, who is with the company as its Artistic Director. Sanasardo's aim is to strengthen the company technically so as to continue attracting choreographers of world renown.

Batsheva Dance Company is the only company other than her own for which Martha Graham has created a new work.

Batsheva Dance Company is the first Israeli company for which Valery Panov has chosen to choreograph, and Valery and Galina Panov will tour with the company. Whenever possible Batsheva calls on its local resources for music, costumes and sets; most of its dancers are kibbutz born, thereby always maintaining the Israeli characteristic of the Company.

In 1975 the Company became the responsibility of the Ministry of Education and Culture and has ever since been considered as the Company of the people of Israel. The Company relies on public funds to insure its future.

Batsheva Dance Company has three subscription series a year with a tremendous number of subscribers and gives over 100 performances annually. It has a workshop to develop young dancers for the future and ballet schools in many outlying areas.

Looking to the future, Batsheva will move into new premises and the hope is to revive many of the old and very beautiful works created for the Company.

A Message From The Artistic Director

Dear Viewer,

When the Executive Committee of the Batsheva Dance Company approached me some time ago with the offer to become Artistic Director I was excited and doubtful at one and the same time. I have followed closely the progress of this Company from the beginning in 1964. I have watched many performances in Israel and abroad and realize that it is a very special company, whose history is unlike that of any other. The company was founded by Batsheva de Rothschild, who was associated with Martha Graham and her company for many years.

Martha Graham herself acted as the Artistic Advisor for Batsheva from its conception and this was the uniqueness of the company. It was the company that brought Israel's message to the world and, of course, to me. I knew that there was previous activity in the field of dance in Israel to create dance companies with Israeli teachers and dancers. But nowadays it is already clear that the history of dance in Israel will be divided into before and after Batsheva. It is this company that placed Israel's name on the world map of dance.

I was rather intimidated when I learned of the many choreographers who worked and created for the company. Among them are Martha Graham, Jerome Robbins, John Cranko, Kurt Jooss, Anna Sokolow, Pearl Lang, Robert Cohan, Talley Beatty, Glen Tetley, Norman Morrice, John Butler, Donald McKayle and Christopher Bruce. At the same time the company encouraged Israeli choreographers, both company members and guests such as Moshe Efrati, Oshra Elkayam-Ronen, Rena Gluck, Rina Schenfeld, Mirali Sharon, Rahamin Ron, Yair Vardi. It seems to me there is no company that can boast of such an important list of world renowned artists. I realized that here was a company with a tradition, a present and a past, and I will have to outline its future.

On previous occasions I visited Israel as guest choreographer. I knew the country and I came to love it and its special dancing style. Those thoughts and facts were part of my decision to accept the offer and if I succeed, settle in Israel and become part of its development in this important field.

One has to rely on the past to build a future. It is important that the dancers know the past, for this is how tradition is created and uniqueness fortified. The company has grown and has already been weaned of the Martha Graham period, but one has to carry on her technique which is so important in modern dance. The character of the company will be guided by me but will be formed by the dancers and their professional ability. The character belongs to the past.

Technique can be developed by classes in classical ballet which is nowadays considered very important in view of the trend in the world of dance to combine the classical and the modern. It is an established fact that dancers are the product of good teachers, talent is the company's character and the choreographers with whom they work—but I will see to it that the company shall not lose its specific Israeli character. I hope I shall succeed and be deserving of the confidence of the Executive Committee of the Batsheva Dance Company and its devoted audience.

PAUL SANASARDO

Paul Sanasardo, now the Artistic Director of The Batsheva Dance Company, has created over fifty ballets since 1959 when he embarked on his career as a choreographer. The major part of his choreographic output was created with his own company, but in the past ten years many of his ballets have been restaged for many modern dance and ballet companies all over the world. At present the Batsheva Dance Company is touring with three of his works, two of which were created for the Company.

VALERY PANOV

Valery Panov, besides his great success as a virtuoso dancer, has launched a career as a choreographer. He has recently choreographed a new work for the San Francisco Ballet and in Berlin staged a full production of his ballet "Cinderella" to Prokofiev's music and created a ballet to Stravinsky's "Le Sacre du Printemps." Valery Panov has created a work for the Batsheva Dance Company "Through the City Streets" based on the "The Lady & The Hooligan."

YAIR VARDI

Yair Vardi, Kibbutz born (1948), joined the Batsheva Dance Company as a dancer in 1967 and a year later was drafted into the army. Upon his release he was invited to join the Company as a leading dancer. "As I Wish..." is his first choreography for the Company. At present he is with the Ballet Rambert, London, both as a dancer and choreographer.

JOHN CRANKO

John Cranko was born in South Africa in 1927. He became a choreographer after a short career as a dancer at the Sadler's Wells Ballet. In 1961 he was asked to direct the Stuttgart Ballet which shortly thereafter became one of the world's leading companies. John Cranko molded an international team of dancers into a unified troupe by using the Royal Ballet "School" combined with dramatic force and projection and developing his dancers by creating new works for them and "on" them. The most memorable ballets composed by John Cranko are his full length works such as "Romeo and Juliet," "The Taming of the Shrew" and "Eugene Onegin." John Cranko said that when he choreographed a ballet he tried to create visual images that speak for themselves. "A diamond has no color, but it takes light, and when you look at it you see red, blue, green and yellow. A ballet image should be like a diamond. The ultimate definition of the images comes from the eyes of the public, not from my eyes."

Such a diamond is the work he did for the Batsheva Dance Company—"Song of My People-Forest People-Sea"—a ballet based on Hebrew poetry where music, poetry and dance intermingle in John Cranko's paean of praise to the legendary past of the Batsheva dancers. John Cranko died in 1973 at the age of 46.

GLEN TETLEY

Glen Tetley, one of the major American choreographers, studied dance with Margaret Craske, Martha Graham, Hanva Holm and Antony Tudor. He toured with John Butler's Modern Dance Company and American Ballet Theatre before he decided to pursue his own independent career.

In 1962 he was invited to join the Netherlands Dance Theatre; eventually he became artistic co-director. He created his own company in 1969 and succeeded John Cranko as director of the Stuttgart Ballet from 1974 to 1976. Among the works Glen Tetley has created for the Batsheva Dance Company are "The Mythical Hunters" to music by the Israeli composer Oedoen Partos, "Psalms" and "Strophe Anti-Strophe."

NORBERT VESAK

Norbert Vesak, born in Vancouver, Canada, studied with Merce Cunningham, Geoffrey Holder, Pauline Koner and others. Started to work as a choreographer for Vancouver Playhouse Theatre Company in 1964 and then for the Royal Winnipeg Ballet and the Ballet of the San Francisco Opera Company. In 1977 he created the duet "Belong" for Valery and Galina Panov.

Guest Artists

GALINA PANOV

Galina Panov was born in Archangelsk, Russia. She started studying ballet at the age of 10. At the age of 18 she was discovered by the great Galina Ulanova at a dance competition in Moscow. Ulanova undertook her training for the International Dance Competition in Varna, Bulgaria, where she won the coveted Gold Medal. At that time she met her husband-to-be, Valery Panov. In 1970 Galina Ragozina was invited to join the Kirov Ballet in Leningrad. She married and became Galina Panov, her husband's partner in life and on stage. Her repertoire includes the major roles in many of the best known classic ballets.

SIMON KAGAN

Simon Kagan, born in the Soviet Union in 1909, graduated from the Conservatory of Leningrad in 1931.

He has composed two Concertos for Piano and Orchestra and many other works. Throughout the Soviet Union he has appeared as a concert pianist and also in Holland, Belgium and Paris. In 1975 he emigrated to Israel and is still actively involved in his musical activities.

VALERY PANOV

Valery Panov was born in Lithuania, began his ballet studies at the age of eight and later pursued his studies in Leningrad. He then joined the Maly Ballet as soloist. Was invited as principal artist in the famed Kirov Ballet in Leningrad (1963-1972) where he was greatly admired as one of the most brilliant virtuoso dancers of his generation. For Israel, the Panovs are more than ballet alone, for they provide a symbol of the prolonged struggle of Soviet Jewry for freedom under the oppressive Soviet regime. Valery Panov was a star of the Kirov Ballet Company of Leningrad where he was awarded numerous prizes for his artistic achievements including the prestigious Lenin Prize. He lost his position after announcing his decision to come to Israel. After a drawn-out struggle and a world-wide campaign by some of the most outstanding intellectuals and artists of the West the Panovs were finally permitted to leave Russia. In 1974 they settled in Israel where they appeared with the Batsheva Dance Company as Guest Artists. This is their first tour abroad with the Company and the beginning of what is hoped will be a long and successful association.
