A Greek legend tells of a beast, half-bull, half-man, called the Minotaur, which was kept by the King of Crete in a labyrinth. Every nine years, as a penalty of war, the people of Corinth were doomed to send to Crete fourteen of the city's finest youth and maidens to be fed to the Minotaur.

The hero, Theseus, prince of Corinth, went himself to Crete and into the labyrinth, guided by a secret thread which had been given to him by the Princess Ariadne, and there fought and killed the Minotaur.

Martha Graham's ERRAND INTO THE MAZE derives from this legend. But here the story has been transformed into a drama about the conquest of fear itself. The heroine enters a landscape like the maze of her own heart, and goes along the frail thread of her courage to find the fear which lurks like a Monster, a Minotaur, within her. She encounters it, conquers it and emerges to freedom.

The Stranger Ehud Ben-David

Love, it has been said, does not obey the rules of love but yields to some more ancient and ruder law. The Garden of Love seems always to be threatened by the Stranger's knowledge of the world outside and by the old knowledge of those like Lilith (according to Legend, Adam's wife before Eve) who lived there first.

Towards the end of the creation of a new work there is a moment when the real and the unreal overlap, when rehearsal becomes performance and the line between what is true and what is simulate is impossible to define.
